CORBETT KNOCKED OUT.

Fitzsimmons Won World's Championship in 14 Rounds.

One Unwary Move on Corbett's Part and the End Came to Him Quickly.

While in a State of Hysterical Mania He Attacked Fitz After Count out

Carson, Nev March 17 After two years of doubt and postponements the heavyweight championship of the world was decided when Robert Fitzsimmons sent Jas J Corbett helpless to his knees with a left hand blow under the heart after 1 minute and 45 seconds in the 14th round of their battle in the arena this afternoon

The great contest was won in the simplest manner and the knockout was the result of one unwary move on Corbett's part The defeat nearly drove Corbett wild The fight was clean and speedy It demonstrated two facts—that Corbett is the cleverest boxer of his weight in the world and Fitzsimmons is able to hit him

Fitz most effective attack was a semi fake left swing, followed with a quick half arm hook

The battle was fought on scientific and almost new principles Neither took advantage of privileges allowed in the London prize rules

Fitz admits Corbett shuffled and side stepped his way to safety in a manner which dazed him "I never saw such a clever man in my life," said he. "I knew I could wear him out so I kept coming right along until my opportunity arrived He was weak in the last round"

Corbett said "I made a mistake in not keeping away Fitz I know to be a terrific puncher, but I never calculated on his being able to reach me. If the 6th had lasted 10 seconds longer I would have landed him I was not out to end the battle. My neglect in not standing off in the 14th lost me the championship

"The heart punch choked me up I could not breathe or move for 15 seconds and it was several minutes before I realized I had committed a breach of etiquette in following up my opponent after he put me out I will be his friend hereafter He whipped me fair and square I don't think he is the best man yet and we will have another go if money can bring him into the ring"

The fight in detail follows

Round 1 — At 12 08 the men faced each other Corbett's back to the sun and Fitzsimmons blinking slightly as the bright rays struck him full in the face Corbett danced around lightly on his toes Fitz covering ground more slowly Both were cautious and smiling They feinted for an opening and Fitz seemed inclined to force matters Corbett broke ground and danced about his opponent Fitzsimmons forced his man into a corner and was the first to lead with a left swing which missed Jim's head by about ten feet The Californian did not land in the first attempt More leading at long range followed Fitzsimmons forced Corbett into a rally and uppercut him lightly in the clinch In a mix up which followed and range was done Corbett shot a light left on the body and broke away clean Fitz swung his left but missed A hard exchange of lefts followed in which the Australian got a little the worst of it Fitz then adopted aggressive tactics and rushed Corbett to his corner, but Jim got out of danger and sent in a heavy right on the body Fitz put a hard left over the heart and Jim swung wildly with his left but landed his right on Fitz wind Corbett rushed to a clinch, they quickly broke clean Fitz was still forcing matters but a hard left swing put him on the defensive Jim swung his left on the heart and they came together On the breakaway Bob sent a vicious upper cut to the jaw A clinch followed and the men broke without a blow as the gong sounded

Round 2 — Fitzsimmons opened with a left swing, but missed his man They came to a clinch and were rather slow in breaking away A vicious left from Fitz just grazed Corbett's breast and again they were inclined to hug in the clinch After the breakaway Fitz put on steam and Jim broke ground but ... the Australian Finally Jim stood his ground and sent in a neat left on the face and a right on the body dancing away without a return Fitz seemed determined to keep on the aggressive and again forced Jim into his corner swinging right and left for the body, but Jim's fast foot work took him out of reach Fitz again forced a clinch and in the breakaway got a stiff left uppercut Bob swung wildly right and left Some very pretty defensive fighting followed neither man being able to get inside the other's guard Long range sparring in which Corbett did most of the leading followed Jim got in a left on the ribs and repeated the blow a moment later Fitz angled and rushed to corner Jim who dodged quickly out of reach and came back with a left on the wind Another left on the stomach brought the round to a close with the men in a clinch It was clearly Corbett's round on points

Round 3 — Jim opened with a rush and sent a left jab hard on the wind Fitz did not like it and tried to rush in return, was wild with right and left Jim stopped another left lead for the heart and countered smartly on the stomach Corbett put a left on the wind and a right on the side of the head Bob's stomach showed a red blotch where the Californian's left struck Bob took a hand in the forcing and lashed out wildly, missing with both hands After a little long range work Jim shot right and left on the body and Bob came into a clinch and landed his right on the ear before they separated Corbett shot a terrible right on Bob's side and followed with a fast left on the wind Both men were getting carefully and cleanly out of clinches Bob's left reached the wind but Corbett swung right on the jaw in the clinch that followed Jim put his left on the body and as Bob came in to clinch him Jim plied two stiff rights on the wind and followed up with another on the body Fitz landed a nice left on the jaw after missing the right lead for the stomach A clinch followed Bob got in a straight drive on the wind A little hugging followed and for the first time the referee came in between the men and broke them Before the bell sounded Fitz put a neat right on the body and swung his left to the jaw Honors were fairly even

Round 4 — Jim again led off with a left which failed to land and they clinched and broke clean Bob tried with a right lead for the head, but missed Corbett put a hard right punch on the body and in the clinch swung his right to the jaw Bob was determined, but slow. Corbett commenced to make things pretty lively, they clinched three times without a blow being struck A light left swing on the jaw from Corbett was returned with interest by Fitz as far as intention went, but Bob's right and left missed the mark by a few inches Corbett landed two heavy rights on the wind and put a straight left flush in the face Then Jim planted his right under Bob's ear and easily escaped a right and left. Jim sent his right to the wind and Bob clinched, taking an upper cut on the chin before the break. Corbett seemed to cling to Fitz clinches as if to save his strength Fitz shot out his left with terrific force on the wind and swung a vicious right for the jaw which was short Corbett's left landed on the stomach and he repeated the dose a second later He swung missing right and left, and on the third trial sent his right to the stomach and followed up with two swift lefts on the jaw Corbett was on the aggressive now and after missing a left for the head he sent his right across the stomach Time was called with the men clinched and smiling in each other's faces

Round 5 — Jim swung a hard left on the jaw which made Fitz groggy and the Australian tried to corner his rival but Jim was too fast and got away sending a left on the jaw as he skipped back Bob was not grinning quite so much now. Jim was ... wild with his right at the stomach on the first attempt but on the second he landed with both hands, his right finding the body and his ... the jaw In the clinch he uppercut Fitz and the latter returned the compliment with a right to Jim on the jaw Corbett sent in two right hand body punches and they clinched After they stepped back Jim's right reached the wind Bob countered with a left under the chin A left jab from the Californian made Fitz mouth bleed and a howl of joy went up from Corbett's admirers at the sight of blood This seemed to nerve Jim and he came in with a vicious right and left on both sides of Fitz head Fitz came back with a right swing which caught Corbett just above the ear and the Californian clinched They stepped back on the word from referee and then Jim put a left on the jaw to which Bob had no return A right on the body and a stiff left on the jaw and a flush on the face made the claret flow freely from Fitz nose and mouth and he appeared a little rattled Jim was now doing all the work and he supplemented a right and a left on the jaw with a half arm punch which was just enough to hurt the point of Fitz jaw ... Corbett showed ... and shifted his attack from body to jaw ... before the bell rang Jim's right and left landed lightly on the point of a neck and as the bell rang he uppercut Fitz in a clinch

Round 6 — Fitzsimmons opened with right and left swings for the jaw which were short He seemed to have grown very ... at his first ... rush and Jim ... hugged him hard attempting to wrestle him against the ropes. Referee Siler cautioned Fitz In the clinches which followed Bob was more cautious Corbett landed a light left on the face and Bob came back with a right on the body lightly and missed a terrific left swing for the jaw They clinched and Bob caught Corbett a hard clip with the right on the side of head On the breakaway Corbett sent in a neat and effective right on the wind and came again with a right on the ... and a left on the mouth and nose which started the blood streak Corbett followed his man all over the ring jabbing him hard with his left Bob appeared to be very near Queer street and hugged Corbett closely While in a hug Corbett upper cut him in the wind pounded a right and left on the jaw and forced Fitz into his corner Fitz came back at him and the fighting that ensued was fast and furious, both men being covered with blood Jim sent a hard right to the jaw and swung his left catching Fitz under the ear and bringing him to his knees He remained down until the referee counted 9 and then got to his feet Jim rushed at once at him plied right and left on both sides of the face Fitz kept away for the ... round and recovered easily showing a wonderful recuperative ability He was slow however and kept clinching Jim uppercut him repeatedly in the clinches delivering right and left three or four times on the jaw Fitz appeared very groggy but Jim lacked the strength to get in the decisive blow In a clinch Jim took a short arm punch in the nose ... Jim As Fitz went to his corner he heard his wife say something about the blood He turned quickly and said "Never mind the blood I've got him licked"

Round 13 — Fitz caught Corbett on the mouth and loosened a tooth Vicious fighting followed In the clinch Corbett upper cut Bob In the sparring that followed Corbett spit out the loosened tooth Fitz led wildly and Corbett ducked sending a hard right on the ribs which drove him back a foot Corbett sent his head back with a left on the chin and followed up with heavy left punches on the body, Fitz countering with a right upper cut Jim ... his left on the ... which bled again freely but this flow seemed to do the Australian no harm Corbett was standing the battle fairly well but his color was not as fresh as Bob's It was easy to see Jim was tired

There was no foul as Corbett was knocked out fairly and ... thought of the ...

When Jim rose with difficulty he seemed about to fall on his face but steadied himself

When he got his senses partly he worked himself into hysteria ... He broke away and rushed at Fitz at the side of the ring When Fitz saw him coming he dropped his hands and stood upright Corbett swung at him wildly and Fitz without ... he landed and Corbett ... striking him with the right hand back of the ear

The blow was not hard as Jim was very weak ... Corbett's friends dragged him away

Fitz ... a dance of victory when he saw his opponent down He waved ... above his head and stepped lightly down the ... to the arms of his wife who sat awaiting him Mrs Fitz kissed her husband's face taking no notice of the blood trickling freely from his nose and mouth

Washington, March 17. For several hours here today there was nothing that in the slightest degree compared in interest with the great Carson City mill At the capitol anxiety to follow its progress was not less than elsewhere through out the town and Senators and members of the House in committee rooms awaited with the same eagerness as the people generally the story of the battle as it was detailed by rounds to the cheering thousands who congregated about the newspaper offices and elsewhere

The United Associated Presses were two or three rounds ahead all day of all rivals Business in the commercial section of the city was practically suspended while the "returns" were being received, and it is safe to assert that at no time in the history of pugilism has there been manifested in this city such intense eagerness for the story of a prize fight as was shown today among all classes of citizens.

THURSDAY, MARCH 18, 1897.

The Hospital Resolve.

There was a spirited debate in the House Wednesday over the resolve in favor of the Eastern Maine Insane Hospital after which an adjournment was had without reaching a vote on motion of the friends of the institution. If this resolve fails it will be a simple matter to fix the responsibility.

Members professing to be in favor of the appropriation are playing directly into the hands of those who are opposing it by offering amendments to abolish the commission when it is known, or at least is claimed to be known, that the appropriation has no chance of passing with the commission eliminated. There is an element of insincerity in connection with this attack upon the commission that will not escape the attention of the people who are watching this legislation with deep interest. It was proposed to abolish the commission and place the construction in the hands of the Governor and Council in the interest of practical economy. The bills of the commission have been attacked, although approved by the previous Governor and Council, and if the commission is retained every item of expense must be passed upon by the present Governor and Council. It would seem that the men who are anxious to place the whole burden of responsibility upon the Governor and Council are nevertheless afraid to trust the auditing of the accounts to the same officials.

Such inconsistency is ridiculous in a legislative body. The Austin amendment to abolish the commission was defeated and now it is to be hoped that the resolve as it came from the committee will be given a passage so that this most necessary work may be resumed in the early spring.

The State College.

The resolve in favor of the State College passed the Senate Wednesday with two amendments. As it came from the House the appropriation was for $25,000 annually for ten years. The Senate reduced the amount to $20,000 and provided for a reasonable tuition. An attempt was made to fix the appropriation for two instead of ten years, but this amendment failed. It ought to be a simple matter to settle the difference between the two Houses in conference committee.

The Prize Fighters.

Corbett and Fitzsimmons after a long war of words came together in the ring Wednesday. The attention this pugilistic event has attracted may be inferred from the fact that the wires both day and evening were kept busy carrying reports all over the country, to the exclusion of other news. A few years ago the press reports would have conveyed a brief statement of fact concerning this encounter, while to-day every detail is pictured with the greatest elaboration. The worst part of it is that the fight will not settle the mooted question as to superiority and for weeks there will be a discussion of what might have happened but for the lucky blow that terminated this combination of fistic science and brute endurance.

The Message and the Tariff.

[New York Tribune.]

The new era begins, as it ought, with quick, sharp work. One half day sufficed to organize a Republican Congress, to receive from a Republican President a short business message, and to have presented a well-matured tariff bill for immediate action. Platitudes and formalities have gone. Work to repair the harm done by four years of error begins on the instant, as a mighty machine starts into action at the touch of an electric button. The contrast will impress the minds of men of action and men of work everywhere.

The President wastes not one word in introduction. He shows that the Nation, with unlimited resources at command, yet presents the remarkable spectacle of borrowing money to meet ordinary outlays. He cites the records: 1892, surplus $9,914,451, and $40,570,468 debt paid; 1893, surplus $2,341,674; 1894, deficit, $69,803,261; 1895, deficit $42,805,223; 1896, deficit $25,203,246; 1897, eight months' deficit $48,210,850; in three years and eight months, deficit $186,061,580; money borrowed, $262,315,400, increasing the annual interest charge $11,493,414, or more than one-half since 1892. Then he says: "Ample means "must be supplied, not only for the ordinary expenses of the Government, "but for the prompt payment of liberal "pensions and the liquidation of the "principal and interest of the public "debt," and he closes: "Before other "business is transacted, let us first provide sufficient revenue to faithfully administer the Government without the "contracting of further debt or the continued disturbance of our finances."

Not one word about other topics; no waste of rhetoric on questions which are not the business of the hour. But on the mode of increasing revenue the President is just as frank, manly and explicit as he was every day at Canton when addressing the people:

Duties should be so levied upon foreign products as to preserve the home market, so far as possible, to our own producers; to revive and increase manufactures; to relieve and encourage agriculture; to increase our domestic and foreign commerce; to aid and develop mining and building, and to render to labor in every field of useful occupation the liberal wages and adequate rewards to which skill and industry are justly entitled.

Congress acts; and, for one half day at least does not talk. It elects Mr. Reed Speaker with a decisive vote sustaining the rules which give him power to get work done. Then it receives the tariff bill proposed by Mr. Dingley, which is now published. The veteran who will fill the position of leader in the House, which Major McKinley filled in 1890, explains its provisions and purpose with his usual clearness and brevity. "In the first year of its operation it will yield from $70,000,000 to $75,000,000 additional revenue, he estimates, which will not only stifle the deficit, but provide for at least a beginning of debt reduction, instead of debt creation. This estimate, as respects the first year, necessarily depends in some measure upon the promptness with which Congress acts. If months are wasted in talk, or in coquetting with men who represent great monopolies, or in struggles for individual rather National benefit, every one knows that those months will be used to anticipate duties by quick and large imports, and thus to deprive the Government of part of the revenue which the measure itself, if promptly passed, would secure.

The first half day of the new era has indeed yielded good results. Such an [illegible] McKinley, and such a tariff bill as has [illegible] to meet his recommendations, will [illegible] themselves do much to strengthen public confidence, to give industries life and hope, and to bring nearer the restoration of prosperity.

[Philadelphia Press.]

President McKinley's first message to Congress is a brief, direct and forceful paper. It presents in succinct terms the reasons for convoking the extra session and enforces in a convincing manner the duty of the people's representatives. Its sole topic is the lack of revenue and the imperative need of supplying it. There is no reference to any other subject. The suggestion of a Currency Commission and the policy of the Government upon the Cuban and other matters are reserved for future treatment. The Inaugural sufficiently indicated the attitude of the President on these questions, and no further discussion is needed until the time comes for action. That time will be after the passage of the revenue bill. Until that duty is discharged it is the single, supreme work before Congress.

The message puts the situation in a clear light. For nearly four years the revenues have fallen short of the ordinary running expenses of the Government. During that time there has been scarcely a month without its deficit. There been no year without a very large shortage. From the close of the war down to 1893 the income of the Government uniformly exceeded its outgo. For the fiscal year ending June 30, 1892, the excess was over $40,000,000. Notwithstanding the disturbances growing out of the Presidential election of 1892 with its assurance of a change of economic policy, yet the gain during the preceding months was so great that even for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1893, there was a small excess. From that hour the deficit began, and, as the President shows, it amounts to more than $186,000,000 for the three years and eight months ending March 1, 1897. Nor does the situation grow better. During the past two months the excess of expenditures has been greater than the average for the whole period. Because of this deficit the Government has been compelled to borrow money to meet the ordinary expenditures and the annual interest charge has thereby increased more than $11,000,000.

Such a shameful and dangerous condition ought to be stopped at the earliest possible moment. The President puts its correction above and beyond all other obligations. He insists that ample revenue should be supplied for all public needs. And in raising this revenue he urges that care should be taken to protect our own industries and defend our own labor. His conspicuous and undeviating championship of protection renders it less necessary that he should dwell upon this obligation, and the fact that just protection will come with an adequate revenue measure carries its own argument. No more debt, no more disturbance of our finances, adequate revenue and reasonable protection—these are the injunctions of the President and they outline the policy of the hour.

[New York Press.]

It is by seeking to withdraw no part of his attention from this condition and by inviting the whole attention of Congress to it solely that the President shows himself to be not only the man for the hour, but the man for all hours. He has avoided the trap and snare of the modern public man; the involved and theoretic legislative "programme." He has shown evidence of a gratifying and assuring determination to deal with one thing at a time. In this he has recognized the fundamental truth of politics and nature; that the people who must supervise their Government, if they are to be governed aright, have only time and patience to consider one thing at a time. All statesmanship is comprehended in picking the most important thing and sternly excluding all other things from immediate consideration.

[New York Sun, Dem.]

The short but very lucid message which President McKinley sent to Congress yesterday is scarcely more than a preface to the Tariff bill which the Dingley Committee has now completed.

The President's statement of the conditions which confront us is an indictment; his declaration that Congress must promptly act is a truism; and his forbearance on every other subject and his economy of words regarding even the business now in hand, constitute a promise that whatever this administration may do or leave undone, it does not intend to be a talk shop.

That is a rainbow.

Harper's Weekly

IN 1897.

With the end of 1896 Harper's Weekly will have lived forty years. In that time it has participated with all the zeal and power at its command in the great political events of the most interesting and important period in the history of the country, and it has spread before its readers the accomplishments of science, arts, and letters for the instruction of the human mind and the amelioration of human conditions and of manners.

What the Weekly has been in its spirit and purpose, as these have been manifested, principally in its editorial pages, it will continue to be.

It is impossible to announce with precision all that the Weekly will contain during the year 1897. It were as easy to announce what is about to happen in the world, what triumphs for good government are to be won, what advances of the people are to be made, what is to be the outcome of the continuous struggle between the spirits of war and peace, what is to happen in the far East, what is to be the state of Europe twelve months hence, what new marvels of science are to be revealed, or what are to be the achievements of arts and letters, for the Weekly is to be a pictorial record of all these.

Cartoons will continue to be a feature.

Serial Stories.—A New England story by Miss Mary E. Wilkins, will begin in January. A tale of a Greek uprising against the Turks, by Mr. E. F. Benson, the author of "Dodo," will follow. A sequel to "The House-Boat on the Styx," by Mr. John Kendrick Bangs, illustrated by Mr. Peter Newell.

More Short Stories will appear in the Weekly than it has been possible to publish during 1896. Departments: Mr. W. D. Howells' "Life and Letters" have been among the most charming features of periodical literature; Mr. E. S. Martin, and others will contribute observations on what is going on in "This Busy World"; "Amateur Sport" will remain the most important department of its kind in the country.

The Weekly will continue to present to its readers the world's news most interesting to Americans, to make important advances in both the literary and artistic features, and to remain for itself the leading place in the illustrated journalism of the world.

Latest Reports from the Situation at Crete.

A Duel Fought Publicly in Paris—Other Items.

Canea, March 17.—Reports have reached here depicting a very bad condition of affairs at Kissamo. It was said that the place was in ruins from the bombardment of the insurgents and the fires which followed the bombardment and that the garrison there, which consists of a company of Turkish infantry, was in danger of being forced to capitulate.

An Italian gunboat, which arrived here yesterday from Kissamo, reports that the situation there has been grossly exaggerated. The garrison, instead of being on the point of surrendering to the rebels, appeared to be in comfortable condition.

Reply of Porte to Note of Powers

Constantinople, March 17.—The reply of the Porte to the note which was presented to the Turkish government by the powers simultaneously with the presentation of the ultimatum of the European governments to Greece has been officially published. The Porte admits the principle of autonomy for Crete, but reserves the discussion of the forms and details of such an administration with the diplomatic representatives of the powers, these details to be subordinate to the withdrawal of the Greek warships and troops from the island.

A Duel Fought Publicly in Paris.

Paris, March 17.—The St. Ouen Racecourse was today the scene of a duel with swords which was witnessed by at least 500 spectators who were amazed at seeing a combat thus publicly carried on. The principals were Signor Pini, the Italian champion swordsman and M. Thomegaex, an amateur in the use of the weapon. Both men showed remarkable skill as swordsmen and up to and including fifth attack neither was injured. In the sixth attack however, M. Thomegaex was slightly wounded in the lip. The cause of the encounter was a quarrel between the men over language used by Thomegaex disparaging the latter's skill as displayed in a recent friendly assault at arms between the two. The exhibition created a sensation.

Turks Not Molested.

London, March 17.—A despatch from Athens says the Greeks in Crete assert that the Turks holding the fortifications at Retimo have made a sortie into the town and pillaged the houses of the inhabitants without the slightest opposition on the part of the detachments of marines from the warships of the powers.

Mr. Bayard and Family Off for Paris.

London, March 17.—United States Ambassador Bayard has written a letter to the lord mayor of London, thanking him for the banquet given in his honor at the Mansion house on March 2. Mr. Bayard dwells upon the good will and friendly understanding that the banquet proclaimed and says it was indeed a memorable occasion, which will be marked by a white stone in the social and political annals of Great Britain and the United States.

Mr. Bayard with his family started for Paris at 11 this morning, leaving Charing Cross station for Dover in a special saloon carriage.

A large gathering of friends assembled at the station to see them off and presented them with bouquets of flowers. For some time before their departure there was a general farewell, handshaking and exchange of good wishes.

Asserted That Greece Will Declare War.

Vienna, March 17.—It is asserted in official quarters here that Greece will declare war against Turkey.

WASHINGTON NEWS.

Discriminating Duty in Favor of American Vessels.

Washington, March 17.—The first bill introduced in the Senate yesterday was by Senator Elkins, of West Virginia, and provides for a discriminating duty of 10 per cent. on all goods imported into this country in vessels other than those of the United States. It also provides for the same duty on the importation of such goods by land means of transportation. The bill enforces the imposition of this discriminating duty on all goods in whatever way they may get into the United States if they shall have reached here in foreign vessels.

Senator Elkins says he believes his bill will upbuild the American shipping trade and he declares that he intends to push it to a vote as speedily as possible.

War Speck on the Mediterranean.

The state department has received an intimation of another war speck on the Mediterranean which may require the presence of some of Admiral Selfridge's ships at Tangier. The American consul general at that port, Mr. Burke, reports an incident which, unimportant as it may appear at first sight, may grow to a serious complication if the sultan of Morocco is stubborn. Mr. Burke writes:

"When Sir Arthur Nicholson, the British minister at this port, visited the sultan last year or the early part of this year, he requested that his majesty grant permission to open one or two gates more in the wall of the town in order to facilitate egress and ingress near that part of the town, close to the Sako or market place. With only one gate in that part of the town it is not only a great inconvenience to going in or out of the town, but is attended with a good deal of danger to persons, because of the donkeys, mules, horses and camels, with loads or without, constantly crowding their way through the narrow entrance, which it is necessary for people to do at the same time, or cause considerable delay for them."

The Rush of Office Seekers.

The rush of senators, representatives and office seekers on the White House was seemingly greater today than it has been at any time since Mr. McKinley was inaugurated. People packed the reception corridor outside the rooms of the President and Secretary Porter, and the passage through the hall was decidedly uncomfortable. About half past twelve the door of the President's room was thrown open and those whose patience had not become exhausted filed in. This proved to be an effective method of disposing of the crowd. Few people had the courage to attempt to monopolize the President's attention with a crowd of importunate citizens standing behind them and as a result Mr. McKinley manages to see everybody and get to his luncheon on schedule time. It is reported that ex-Congressman Kiefer of Minnesota has been selected for the position of commissioner general of immigration.

Motion to Discharge Committee Lost.

Albany, N. Y., March 17.—In the senate to-day Senator Cantor's motion to discharge the miscellaneous corporations committee from the further consideration of his New York City dollar-gas bill was lost by a vote of 7 to 37, and the committee will be allowed to report when it gets ready.

An Unfavorable Report Ordered.

Concord, N. H., March 17.—The house railroad committee reported this morning, 9 to 3, in favor of the indefinite postponement of the bill incorporating the Milford and Manchester railroad.

JOHNSON'S ANODYNE LINIMENT

Cures Every Form of Inflammation;
INTERNAL as much as EXTERNAL.

Originated by an old Family Physician in 1810. It acts promptly. It is always ready for use. Dropped on sugar suffering children love it. Every Mother should have it in the house for colic, croup, cholera morbus and summer complaints, pain in the stomach, bowels or kidneys. For bites, burns, bruises, sun burn, sprains or strains, it is the sovereign cure. All who use it are amazed at its power, and loud in its praise for ever after.

For more than forty years I have used Johnson's Anodyne Liniment in my family. I regard it one of the best and safest family medicines. To be used internal and external in all cases. O. H. INGALLS, Dea. Bap. Ch., Bangor, Me.

CROUP. My children are subject to croup. All that is necessary is to give them a dose, bathe the chest and throat with your Liniment, tuck them in bed, and the croup disappears as if by magic. [illegible], Bucksport, Texas.

THE ARBITRATION TREATY.

Favorable Report Ordered by Committee on Foreign Relations.

The Scope of the Treaty Not Touched by Amendments.

Washington, March 17.—The senate committee on foreign relations today ordered a favorable report on the arbitration treaty to be made to the senate tomorrow, with certain amendments. Chairman Davis was instructed to push the consideration of the treaty with all possible speed.

The amendments are not material, only in character. The scope of the treaty has not been touched. Much of the public criticism against the action of the committee during the last session was due to the alleged fact that the committee had emasculated the convention and made it practically a nonentity. The amendment to the first article that now strikes out all relative to the "Monroe doctrine" policy of either party should be included, which was [illegible] given such prominence, has disappeared entirely.

The same result is reached, however, in a very different manner. The designation of King Oscar of Sweden and Norway as the umpire has been stricken out, as has been all reference to the justices of the supreme court of the United States as members of the tribunal established under the treaty. In place of this designation it is stipulated that "umpires" shall be agreed upon by the President as such arbitrators.

The chief amendment to the convention, however, is found in the clause which reserves to the United States Senate or the whole [illegible] power in deciding what questions shall be submitted to arbitration. This provision will necessitate, for the President to submit to the Senate for its approval or disapproval all questions intended to be submitted to the arbitration court.

The committee has acted as to make that it has only reserved to the Senate the identical power granted by Great Britain, which under the treaty decides through its cabinet what questions shall be arbitrated. It is quite likely that much of the time during the next two weeks will be spent in executive session. Pending the arrival of the tariff bill in the Senate, the treaty will be discussed together with all considerations of the President's nominations and it is the confident expectation of the chairman that it will be able to have it considered for ratification [illegible] the [illegible].

Held for Trial for Obtaining Money Under False Pretenses

Montreal, March 17.—Michael Murphy, of council bluffs, was committed by the Court of Queen's Bench yesterday for trial on the charge of obtaining $800 under false pretenses from T. J. Finkle, of Toronto, who claims that Father Murphy represented himself as having been authorized by Archbishop Corrigan and Bishop Wigger to found an institution in Newark, N. J., and that these representations induced him to give. The Institute, however, never reached maturity for the reason that the clerical dignitaries referred to denied that they had given the authority.

"Oliver Optic" Dangerously Ill.

Boston, March 17.—William T. Adams, the author, widely known by his nom de plume, "Oliver Optic," is very ill at his residence in Dorchester, and as physicians express the opinion that he can live but a day or two. He has suffered kidney troubles. He came from weeks ago from Jamaica, where he had gone for his health, and the severe temperature he endured has prostrated him. He is in his 75th year.

Pastor Deposed and Excluded from Church.

Newark, N. J., March 17.—At a meeting of the congregation of the Fairmount Baptist church last night Rev. E. J. Oldknow Millington was deposed from the pastorate of the church and he and Mrs. Dorothy Dickinson were excluded from fellowship in the church. Mr. Millington and Mrs. Dickinson recently eloped to Montreal. They returned to Newark.

The Outcome of a Jealous Quarrel.

Philadelphia, March 17.—Frederick Franks, aged 37, this morning shot and killed his son, William, aged 9 years, shot and dangerously wounded his daughter, Amelia, aged five years, and then turned the pistol upon himself, inflicting a fatal wound. The tragedy occurred at Franks' residence and is said to have been the outcome of a jealous quarrel with his wife.

Anti-Sunday Base Ball Bill Disposed Of.

Jefferson City, Mo., March 17.—The anti-Sunday base ball bill came up in the senate yesterday and was finally disposed of by being indefinitely postponed.

MAINE MELANGE.

Four Men from a Disabled Schooner Rescued.

Subordinate Officers Elected for Hallowell City Government.

Cumberland.

Schooner Marker arrived at Portland Tuesday with four men whom they took from the Gloucester schooner John Whalen. The Whalen had lost her foresail and jib and was working toward Gloucester under trysail. The men were taken off at their own request and brought to Portland.

A. J. Buchanan, of the Stafford Oil Co., wanted in Portsmouth for forged checks is also wanted in Portland for forging a check for $60 and passing it at the West End Hotel.

To a Portland surgeon recently came a young woman from the provinces who had hemorrhages of the lungs and told him that she believed that when she had a number of teeth extracted, some time previous, a tooth slipped down the windpipe into her lung. The surgeon thought this nothing but a fancy, but after the woman died an autopsy of the lung was performed and sure enough in the lung—where the bronchus joins the lung—the tooth was found. It had caused the trouble that had produced death, so the Portland exchange reports.

Hancock.

Miss Sarah N. Blake, of Castine, has no prejudices against the figure 13. Just that number of kind neighbors met in her yard recently and spent the day in fitting her year's supply of wood for the stove.

Kennebec.

The new Hallowell city government has elected the following subordinate officers: President of common council, H. R. Stinson; clerk of same, Ralph S. Thomas; city clerk, F. Morrill; treasurer and collector, Charles E. Tilden; pension agent, D. K. Howell; assessor, Frank Atkins; overseer of the poor, C. A. Brown; trustee of cemetery, L. D. Merchant; member of school board, W. A. Winter; city marshal, E. M. Henderson; city solicitor, E. Besse; city physician, J. D. Spring; street commissioner, James W. Field; chief engineer fire department, George S. Patterson.

Oxford.

Harry Purrington, of Bethel, is reported by the Oxford Democrat to have recently come in contact with a clothesline, while sportively jumping from a stable window into a snow drift. Two of the front teeth extracted by the line were recovered and replaced in the upper jaw.

Washington.

A good woman at Jacksonville, who is confined to her bed, being unable to raise her head from the pillow, does not mean to let her illness interfere with her usefulness. The Machias Republican says she insists upon having her Sunday school for the children in her vicinity who are unable to attend the larger school, and enjoys taking with the children, hearing their singing, and repeating Scripture verses, etc. She also holds "League meetings," following the given topics with much interest.

York.

Biddeford is in trouble. The law of 1895 putting the subordinate officers of a city under the direction and control of the mayor and aldermen has been repealed. The Biddeford Journal says this repeal upsets nearly municipal plans in Biddeford. Joint standing committees will hereafter have more to do. So Maine cities say the Journal.

THE BIG FIGHT.

Remarkable Scenes at Carson City Wednesday.

The Preliminaries, Sights of the Day and Graphic Description.

Carson, Nev March 17—The bustle and crowds of the past couple of days which have transformed this sleepy little town into a hustling burg appeared only as a drop in the bucket in comparison with the excitement in the streets on the early morning of the battle of the century The flush and fever and fight excitement were everywhere All preliminary arrangements with the exception of the rather unimportant position of master of ceremonies were harmoniously settled by midnight last night

There was something of a wrangle bout the gloves which were taken out of Stuart's safe Martin Julian as an [illegible] started the preliminaries by objecting to the rough manner in which the seams were sewed on Corbett's gloves Brady not to be outdone took exception to the workmanship of Fitzsimmons's gloves After a little sparring both managers cooled down and the gloves were accepted and returned to the safe in Stuart's office where the gauntlets remained in charge of the Texan until thrown into the ring

The next important detail was the toss for corners and Julian got a set back when the coin was flipped and his call was not turned Brady chose the south east corner William Muldoon of New York was named as official time keeper while Lou Houseman of Chicago was selected to hold the watch for the Australian and Jimmy Colville of Boston performed a like office for Corbett

George Siler of Chicago who had already gained no little fame by his interpretation of rule 12 of the Marquis of Queensberry rules whereby the [illegible] mooted question of hitting in clinches with one hand free and hitting on the break away were decided in the affirmative [illegible] the most responsible of the office [illegible] judge [illegible] and his office as official referee [illegible] duty

In Corbett's Corner

Both men were provided with a group of seconds taken entirely from the forces which had helped the Californian and his rival to reach a stage of physical excellence which has never been surpassed In Corbett's corner besides his manager Billy Brady and Charley White of New York whose skill [illegible] of thought [illegible] contains more sound judgment and tricks of the trade than does the cranium of any other pugilistic trainer

White's presence behind a fighter is generally regarded by the fraternity as [illegible] at least ten per cent to his [illegible] chances and often he has sent the battle [illegible] of the boxer who was lucky [illegible] to get him behind the sponge up a peg or two In this battle White's position as trainer and second was looked upon as a good thing for Corbett as he had trained and seconded Fitzsimmons and knew the Australian fairly well Billy Delaney, another veteran second who has trained Jim in all his fights and John McVey whose brawny arms have often [illegible] the Californian in his wrestling practice [illegible] Corbett's [illegible]

Fitzsimmons is of course looked after by his brother-in-law and manager Martin Julian With Martin as chief all [illegible] not neglected With Julian were Ernst Roeber [illegible] wrestler Dan Hickey and Jack Stelzner

The severity of the [illegible] sports [illegible] from Nevada as [illegible] interfered [illegible] the out door [illegible] of the [illegible] the [illegible] of Carson City and the cost of travel [illegible] be counted as a factor in keeping down the [illegible] Not withstanding these drawbacks the contest attracted the [illegible] sporting [illegible] ever gathered together on this continent

The Men Sound in Wind and Limb

Drs Gunnan and Huffaker, the official physicians [illegible] by the county [illegible] to make an examination of the pugilists in accordance with that section of the bill providing for a medical examination of the principals 12 hours before the contest handed in their certificates [illegible] Dan Stuart and County Clerk Tyrell this morning The documents set forth that both men are [illegible] sound of wind and limb and perfectly capable of standing a severe physical strain without danger

His Wife Assists Him

At Cook's ranch Martin Julian [illegible] his usual line of secretiveness The visitors who drove out to wish the lanky Australian godspeed before the battle were denied even the privilege of seeing the [illegible] point [illegible] the cottage the preparations were not one whit less [illegible] those which were openly performed at Shaw's Springs [illegible] over the Californian in that his wife supplemented every detail in connection with his training [illegible] while Kilian [illegible] Billy Woods [illegible] Mrs Fitzsimmons got together [illegible] wearing apparel [illegible]

A few of the fortunate occupants of vehicles in the front row [illegible] through the cottonwoods a glimpse of Fitzsimmons [illegible] followed by the tall Australian and a big [illegible] the line But the blinds were drawn [illegible] and doors were guarded until the hour for departure had arrived

Early Betting Was Not Brisk

The early morning betting was not brisk and no big wagers were recorded The odds therefore underwent no change [illegible] straight [illegible] 10 to [illegible] obtainable with Corbett at the long end Paris Mutuels sold a little faster [illegible] tickets being disposed of on the following combinations Corbett, Green [illegible] 110 Corbett Greer Hawkins 85 Corbett, Smith Flaherty [illegible] Fitzsimmons Green Flaherty 18 Fitzsimmons Smith Flaherty [illegible] Fitzsimmons Green Hawkins 28 Corbett Smith Hawkins 26 Fitzsimmons Smith Hawkins 23

Each Tapped to Locate Firearms

The first precautions against any possible disturbance during the excitement later on were taken as the spectators passed inside the outer gate Each man was carefully tapped with a view of the location of concealed arms and when these were found the possessor was turned back and politely requested to return without the munitions of war

A line of gaudily attired Piutes and Washoes fringed the road from Carson street to the arena and cackled like a flock of magpies as the happy procession filed along Each celebrity was pointed out and stared at until curiosity was satisfied and Dan Stuart's day will hereafter be used by the red men to mark time

At the training quarters the watchful seconds had scarcely caught a glimpse of old Sol before everything sprung into bustle and activity There was scurrying to and fro and preparations for break fast were completed in short order A train of sight seers commenced to arrive shortly after 7 to take a final look at the men before they entered the arena

The Principals Unruffled by the Crowds

In the midst of all the talk and excitement of which everyone took a share there were two figures on whose coolness the occasion did not seem to have the slightest effect. Although three short hours only remained before Corbett and Fitzsimmons were to commence the struggle they were as unruffled as they were at any time when the contest was weeks away

Corbett retired to his room at eight last night. He slept soundly and required no alarm clock to wake him up at 6.30 this morning A long line of vehicles occupied every fence rail about Shaw's Springs long before the Californian had finished his breakfast and although there is no scarcity of hitching posts around the springs on ordinary occasions, there were not quarter enough this morning to accommodate the number of quadrupeds that were driven out

After a short wait, the early birds were gratified by a sight of Corbett as he came out on the front veranda dressed in a light tweed suit, sweater and Scotch cap. His father accompanied him and a gratified smile beamed on the old man's features as he heard the rousing cheers that greeted his stalwart son.

Jim smiled and bowed his acknowledgments and commenced chat with each of the crowd as he knew. Twenty minutes elapsed before social amenities had to [illegible]

California's New Mining Camp

This is a wild camp composed of 213 tents mostly small ones at 111 [illegible] and shanties ranging from 6 by 6 to 60 by 60 feet The largest are the dance houses, groceries, hotels and lodging houses It is hard to get a bed in a comfortable place any [illegible] Every kind of trade is amply represented on a small scale except the [illegible] saloons which are represented on a scale out of proportion to the number of inhabitants More [illegible] every day and it takes about two days' work of two [illegible] to build [illegible] them without plastering ceilings [illegible]

It is a [illegible] in every respect except the mining part of it.

As there are only about 75 men employed in the [illegible] of about 1 500 people the money to support the camp comes mostly from outsiders coming and going. There are three stages from Mojave and two from Kramer every day besides many teams hauling lumber, supplies and water

Very little development work has been done yet on the claims and mines but for the amount done there is an excellent showing of high grade ore.

No miner or any one else who does not have immediate work to live should come here as the camp is overstocked now

Every foot of the surrounding country is taken up by claims some two and three deep There is a prospect of lively times in settling up these claims

GENIUS OR INSANITY

THE FADS AND PECULIARITIES OF WRITERS AND COMPOSERS

Innumerable Ways of Supplying Mental Stimulus—Trifling Manias That Lombroso Incorrectly Regards as Mental Aberrations

It is not an easy matter to try to draw the frontier line of insanity Although certain psychologists basing their opinion on the physical anomalies and eccentricities of mind observed in men of genius claim with apparent reason, that genius and insanity are the same thing it is going to excess to consider writers and artists insane in whom queer traits and little manias appear In this respect Lombroso and his disciples have gone too far their tendency being to make no distinction between genius and talent

Genius is an anomaly but an anomaly that the whole world is satisfied to admire It is constituted by the exaggerated development of a single faculty, usually at the expense of the others This is the cause of the imperfections of these brilliant meteors and the explanation of their degeneracy on other points Essentially spontaneous and original genius is a natural phenomenon that we cannot explain although it is unquestionably the result of natural causes

Talent is different It is the fruit of work and sustained application and it can be acquired and developed at any time At the present day for instance there are few [illegible] of genius among painters and yet they almost all have talent The consequence is that the greater number of the paintings in our exhibitions are pleasing to us although no exceptional work fills us with admiration and reveals a painter of genius

Actions therefore in appearance extraordinary do not warrant us in inferring insanity on the part of those who accomplish them especially as these actions however abnormal they may seem at first are often very rational and justifiable

Thus in order to be able to meditate at their ease many writers shut out every disturbing thing and seek seclusion Montaigne [illegible] his [illegible] of inspiration [illegible] to run out of his house and go [illegible] old tower [illegible] Jean Jacques Rousseau used to meditate in the fields while gathering flowers in the sunshine In order to shut out the noise of the world he liked to bury himself [illegible] or close his ears with [illegible]

Other [illegible] only compose with success in the midst of tumult The celebrated Italian composer Cimarosa was of this number [illegible] found the [illegible] of his operas in the midst of the joys and noise of the crowd

Such was [illegible] profe[illegible] of whom Felix Regnault says that he could only lecture in the midst of a great racket When his scholars [illegible] manifest ing [illegible] they kept absolute silence, and under such conditions he was incapable of [illegible]

Just as [illegible] brain of some [illegible] quicken the circulation of others [illegible] number of persons who can only compose while exercising [illegible] not explain clearly even to [illegible] know [illegible] without [illegible] brain [illegible] by exercise Victor Hugo while composing, walked about muttering to himself

In our day many writers prefer to walk. Catulle Mendes walks up and down and then writes at his desk Jean Lombard the well known writer who died a few years ago walked in a great deal Mistral [illegible] poet composes while walking

On the other hand certain writers avoid all motion probably on account of their weak constitution and in order to stimulate the brain circulation put themselves in a horizontal position For example Descartes [illegible] lie down [illegible] and Cujas [illegible] could only work profitably lying at full length on the carpet

A whole class of writers Theophile Gautier Banville, Francois Coppee and Scribe require the presence of cats to write Gautier used to have as many as 14 or 15 Leon Cladel writes in wooden shoes, in the society of his dog in a garret At intervals he takes his dog off for a walk

Intellectual stimulants are largely used among which coffee is a great favorite Lortzing drank bowls of it while composing, [illegible] and Balzac did it to great excess De Musset, Poe, Verlaine and many others preferred alcohol while Schubert wrote his best [illegible] under the influence of large quantities of Rhine wine

Tobacco smoke is also much used Flaubert could not write a word until he had smoked three or four large pipes and half a dozen very strong cigars. Daudet smokes enormously Catulle Mendes smokes cigars while writing and often has three or four going at the same time through absentmindedness

Perfumes were highly appreciated by Baudelaire Theophile Gautier Leth[illegible] Malzeroy Byron couldn't write without having the odor of truffles about him and frequently carried his pockets full of them Cooper [illegible] on his sense of taste by filling his mouth with honey table [illegible] and small pieces of licorice Carolus Duran and Aime Merot worked themselves up before painting by playing the piano and organ Darwin preferred the violin

The singularities, queer traits and even manias to which I have just called attention in writers and artists are if one reflects generally explicable No doubt some of them betray a nervous condition that is on the limits of mental derangement, but as a rule they are simple peculiarities whose importance is exaggerated on account of the public position of the writer and would not justify in any sense the term it sanity which for this reason Lombroso would like to attribute to men of great talent —Paris Herald.

Communication Regarding Maxfield

To the Editor Whig and Courier

Last week I noticed in a Bangor paper an article of biting sarcasm directed at the voters of Maxfield because the representative to the legislature from that town had introduced a petition signed by seven of the citizens asking that Maxfield be made a plantation Now the residents of this "tax-ridden and much agitated" town, according to your contemporary, would like to define their position

Some of the statements were true but it is emphatically untrue that a change of this kind is desired by the intelligent members of the community and there are intelligent people in Maxfield as one can easily learn if he comes to the town to seek rather than turning his attention to Augusta to find them.

Your correspondent [illegible] and finds that they are bitterly opposed to his move

As to its financial standing the present debt of the town is only $78 00 and its valuation a $1 000 farm is valued at $[illegible]00 the tax rate not exceeding 3 per cent There are no expensive bridges and there has not been a pauper in town for about twenty years

Certainly there is something wrong but it will never be remedied by changing back to a plantation

A conscientious examination of the records shows that an unprecedented amount of money, considering the number of inhabitants is paid annually for town officers bills legal advice, etc The evil is at our own doors and the town not the State, should remedy this

Maxfield is one of the oldest towns in the county being incorporated in 1824 the year after Maine was admitted to the Union, there are 32 polls which is a good average of the number of voters the town has ever shown

The legislature has been unnecessarily troubled, for Maxfield will never vote to become a plantation Her farmers are well to-do and industrious and do not desire it

Boston Horse Show

As the date of the Boston Horse Show draws near, the interest in that all important event grows apace Boston proved itself capable of giving a show of the first magnitude in 1896 and having established such a precedent the Boston Horse Show Association proposes to maintain the high standard already established and if possible to raise it There does not seem at all unlikely for few cities are more favorably situated for the holding of horse shows than the Hub, as it is easy of access and the whole of New England is studded with stock farms, which should ensure a large entry of first class horses The dates for the coming exhibition are April 13 to 24 inclusive Last year the prize list amounted to $13 000 and this sum has been increased by more than $2 000 In all there are some 101 classes of which [illegible] are devoted to trotters Seven classes are announced for the fashionable hackney [illegible] Coach horses, carriage horses heavy draft horses, saddlers and polo ponies have also been amply provided for There are no less than six of the [illegible] classes which also will prove attractive features Tandems and four in hands which are always pleasing to the spectators have not been forgotten In addition to the regular classes for hunters and jumpers, the hunt club competition which is a decided novelty should fill well The cavalry competition is also an innovation The entries close March 27, with the secretary of State street Boston Mass While everything is progressing perfectly as far as the horses are concerned the social side of the show is not being neglected and preparations are now under way for the auction sale of boxes in Music Hall on Monday March 29 at 3 o'clock p m

Mark Twain as a Reporter

Mr Clemens is at present [illegible] when he commenced to write for The Golden Era [illegible] Territorial Enterprise in Virginia City Nev about 1863 as correspondent [illegible] in a [illegible] where he could make a living was Josh [illegible] and the name that he [illegible] up in his letters to the Washoe [illegible] and made the papers [illegible] after [illegible] sent for him and he came gladly relinquishing the pick and shovel [illegible] the wild days and the bucket, for the journalist's pen Mr Clemens came to Virginia City dressed in the usual garb of a miner, well worn at that and [illegible] himself with his mining friend [illegible] He had also in a greater degree the subsequently the exceptional drawl in his speech, which he chose to consider one factor in the sum of his distinctive individuality He took readily to reporting the varying fortunes of the mining community and struggling the [illegible] writing force on the Enterprise materially while at the same time availing himself of legitimate opportunities to acquire feet in the Comstock and shares in different enterprises He was accounted quite rich in this kind of property at one time With his remuneration for his work, his personal appearance rapidly improved and he grew to be a swell in a mild way, besides cleaner in speech as well as in dress

Becoming dissatisfied with his pen name [illegible] he changed it to "Mark Twain" by which at the present day, he is known to the literature of the world

About 1864 Mr Clemens went to San Francisco. It cannot be said that he made many friends in Nevada There were some who all [illegible] his company on account of his writings but he had not the faculty of winning friendship Before he had arrived in the city he had accumulated a goodly amount of the [illegible] very stiver of which he sunk [illegible] Hale & Norcross Then he took up the burden of literary life again He wrote San Francisco letters to his old paper, The Territorial Enterprise and for some real or fancied cause attacked the local police so persistently and fiercely that Martin G J Burke who was chief of the force at the time brought suit for libel against the paper Such convenient communications as Mr Clemens wrote on this subject have rarely been penned They made the official equanimity of the old city hall boil like a caldron of asphaltum the fumes and stench being in proportion He also contributed for Charley Webb (Inigo) to The Californian for The Golden Era and did all sorts of literary work whereby he could turn a cent It was a terrible uphill business and as he has determined in [illegible] himself he would have abandoned the struggle and remained at the base Mr Clemens was at Steamboat Springs, Nev for his health when the letter was written offering him a place on The Call He came down shortly after, but judging from his appearance fortune had been playing scurvy tricks with him in the interim Without doing the gentleman any injustice it can be freely stated that although at the time a good general writer and correspondent, he made but an indifferent reporter He only played at reporting

Considering his experience in the mountains he had an inexplicable aversion to walking, and in putting his matter on paper he was to use his own expression "slower than the wrath to come" Many funny and characteristic incidents occurred during his few months' stay on The Call He only wanted to remain long enough he said when he engaged to go to work to make a stake but on leaving his purse was no heavier than when he came The most notable thing he did that can now be recalled was a philippic against some undertaking employes where the morgue happened to be for the deadhouse, in those days, like the old fashioned plan with the country school mistress and the villagers, was "boarded round," each undertaker accommodating the coroner in turn

It appears some one about the place refused to give Mr Clemens information or to let him see "the slate," and next morning he got such a dose, commencing "these body snatchers," that a general apology was immediately made by every man in the establishment The proprietor was East at the time, but when he read the article he shivered, as he confessed afterward and considered his business ruined Mr Clemens parted from The Call people on the most friendly terms when it was found necessary to make the local department more efficient, admitting his reportorial shortcomings and expressing surprise that they were not sooner discovered

Mr Edison is said to be devoting a share of his inventive genius to the bicycle with the idea of devising some strength-giving appliance thereto He is reported to be confident that he can find a successful means for storing the power created by descending hills for later use on the level or in up grade work He believes that nature's force found in gravity alone offers hope for supplementing the powers of the cyclist in any practical way. Storage battery systems and others involving the use of motors have a great future for three or four wheeled vehicles, says Mr Edison, but will never be made practical for the single track two wheeler He therefore thinks that the inventor's opportunity for usefulness in this direction is limited to methods for taking advantage of the force of gravity.

Season's Outlook at Bar Harbor

Indications now point to a most prosperous season for Bar Harbor Cottages are renting rapidly It is reported on good authority, that a number of cottages have been engaged during the past week Lieut General J M Schofield, who is now on the retired list of the United States, has taken a cottage, and several other prominent Washingtonians Hon Robert B Bowler, of Washington, has rented his cottage on Albert avenue to Mr Alexander Maitland of New York Mr and Mrs Maitland have spent a number of summers at Bar Harbor in their yacht Several years ago they occupied the Grant cottage on the shore The "Lookout cottage" on Eagle lake road, owned by Mrs Moncure Robinson, has been rented to Miss Hoy of Philadelphia, who with the Misses Will ing will occupy it the coming summer

A Summer "Cottage"

As an example of what skilled workmanship, backed by unlimited wealth can do, the Pulitzer cottage at Bar Harbor stands unrivaled The term cottage is used advisedly, and the newer portion is called by the owner an "addition" But think of an addition one hundred feet long and of three stories

Six weeks ago the contractor put on a crew of eighteen or twenty men and the first sill was laid To-day the inside finish is being put on and the masons are at work

On the first floor, as one enters from the main house the first room is the dining hall 30x34 overlooking the broad Atlantic, in the eastern corner is the glass breakfast room, something unique, the four walls being composed of glass The dining hall has large windows and double French doors opening upon the piazza and will be a most beautiful room when completed It will be finished in white enamel and gold Back of the dining hall is the china room, butler's pantry, kitchen and serving room, in all eighty feet in length

On the western side is Mrs Pulitzer's billiard room, 20x30 to be finished in oak, then come the servants dining room and elevator for baggage, etc On the second floor are the sleeping apartments arranged in suites with a fire place in every room There are also several large linen closets and five bath rooms In the rear, over the kitchen, are four sleeping rooms for servants The third floor has ten sleeping rooms for servants, three bath rooms and closets galore

Here also is Mr Ralph Pulitzer's room one of the largest in the house and commanding an extended view of sea and shore, this room has a private bath room connected

In the tower are the tanks which supply the bath rooms with both salt and fresh water

A basement cellar goes under the whole house The work already done has cost thousands of dollars and when completed and finished the outlay at Bear Brook will represent a sum the magnitude of which can scarcely be comprehended, says the Bar Harbor Record

Cycle Notes

There are no less than 12 road improvement bills before the legislatures of as many different states, and in all the bills the creation of a highway commission is provided for, mainly on the lines of the Massachusetts commission

The total number of applications received for membership in the League of American Wheelmen the past week was 808, which brought the total membership up to 75 840

New York again led, with 231, making her total membership 21 094 Pennsylvania added 83 members—one more than Massachusetts—swelling her total to 11 800 while the Massachusetts membership jumped to 10 283 New Jersey has 4 971 members, Illinois, 3 011 Ohio 2,118, Missouri, 2 060, Connecticut, 1 527 Iowa, 1 301, Indiana, 612

The number of applications received during this period shows a falling off from the number received during the corresponding period of last year

Base Ball Notes

The Ellsworth base ball enthusiasts are arranging for organizing a team If the other towns in the county care to join with Ellsworth and form a county league, enough cash will be subscribed to support a creditable organization. Two years ago, a league was formed by Bar Harbor, Bucksport, Ellsworth and a combination of Franklin and Sullivan. That year was seen the best base ball playing which the county had ever witnessed, Bar Harbor and Franklin can probably be relied upon to put teams on the diamond this year and if Bucksport and Sorrento care to enter a strong league could be organized.

The Portlands will open at Paterson, N. J., April 2

Portland wants Hickey and is trying to arrange with Manager Burnham for his services.

Boston Herald: Chris Toole says that he feels very confident that the Maine state league will be as strong as will the New England, and that the article of base ball furnished will be fully as good.

The negotiations of Kansas City for Pitcher Harry Dolan are off. Manager Manning would not accede to Dolan's terms. As no club cares to purchase Dolan's release, he will doubtless be allowed to go where he pleases.

Gannel says that he is ready to catch regularly, day in and day out, and if his health stands it [illegible]

ST PATRICK'S DAY

Successfully Celebrated in Bangor Wednesday

Wednesday was St Patrick's Day and it was successfully observed by the Catholic societies in this city

During the day the Irish and American flags were displayed on the front of the A O H Hall on Main street and many wore bows of green in the lapels of their coats

In the evening an entertainment was given at City Hall by the pupils of the Catholic schools of the city under the direction of the Sisters of Mercy The entertainment was attended by the members of Penobscot division No 1 Ancient Order of Hibernians in a body

The stage presented a most attractive scene At each side was draped a large American flag and the little folks were dressed in neat costumes of white and green

Opening chorus	Dear Little Shamrock

K Barney	Love of a Bonnet
Select Chorus	Solo

The exercises were very successfully carried out in each instance and hearty applause followed every number

All of the musical numbers solos choruses and instrumental selections were rendered with harmony and pleasing effect and the recitations reflected much credit upon the reciters The operetta was given in a manner which met with the entire favor of the audience and the drama was produced with similar effect The dumb bell drill was finely executed Misses Ella and Delia Connor were the pianists of the evening and played with much skill

AMUSEMENTS

Prof Carpenter

Prof Carpenter the hypnotist who has been giving exhibitions at The Normbega for a week closed his engagement last evening The exhibitions have been quite well attended and the spectators were amused by the performances of those who gave themselves into the hypnotic power of the professor

Dan Sully

A scene of special interest in O Brien, the Contractor which comes to the Opera House Friday, March 19 with Daniel Sully in the title role, will be a touch of humor introduced between O Brien and the children The little daughter of a wealthy lady meets O Brien and with a child's intuitiveness recognizes the diamond in the rough and through her friendliness is the cause of her mother becoming the wife of O Brien when he attains the fortune for which he has been working It is all brought about so naturally and with so many touches of humor and pathos as to make it of special interest An exciting and realistic scene in yet another shows the blasting of rock, the construction of a railroad the threatened strike and the final driving of the golden spike

Wilbur Opera Company

Manager Owen takes pleasure in announcing that he has secured for one week the Wilbur Opera Company which will open its engagement at the Opera House next Tuesday night

This favorite operatic organization comes to us this season with all the old favorites retained The chorus has been enlarged and the beautiful and intricate marches which were so long a feature of the productions of this company have been revived In addition to the excellent repertoire of comic operas which the company has been presenting in the past, Manager Wilbur has made this season notable by the revival of the old favorite standard operas such as "Faust" "Maritana," "Martha" "Fra Diavolo," etc, some of which will be presented during the coming engagement Mr Wilbur does not however believe in shelving the comic operas hence he has kept a number of them in his repertoire and will produce the best of them during the week In addition to the operas Mr Wilbur will give as a concluding feature at each performance, his celebrated living pictures The subjects of the pictures have been changed considerably since last season, although a number have been retained

The roster of the company has been changed but little from last season and includes Maggie Bolton, Hattie Richardson, Maud Daniel, E A Clark J S Corly Emmet Drew W H Kohnle, J Clarence Harvey and a chorus of fifty and increased orchestra under the direction of Frank N Darling, making an ensemble of seventy people in all The following will be the programme for the week Tuesday night Fra Diavolo, Wednesday matinee "Grand Duchess," Wednesday night, "Maritana" Thursday matinee, "Falka," Thursday night "Martha," Friday matinee, "Dorothy," Friday night, "Bohemian Girl" Saturday matinee, "Two Vagabonds," Saturday night, "Olivette"

Military Matters

General Orders No 2 have been issued from the Adjutant General's office The regular inspections by the inspector general are ordered The inspections of the various companies will be on such dates as he may designate The inspections will be made upon the dates of the semi monthly drills Company commanders will be notified of the date fixed for the inspection.

The annual encampment for 1897 will be held the second week in August

The following enlisted men are mustered out upon recommendation of their respective company commanders

Co A, for non-attendance at drills, Elmer W Chambers and Wm Ramsey.

Co E Frederick Doran, Joseph J. Lawler, Michael G Connolly, Joe T King, Joe A McDonald and Louis Valentine

It is probable that the vacancies in the 2d regiment field officers will be filled as follows: Capt Wm S Hunn, Eastport, as Lieut, Colonel, and Capt. E T Lee of Calais, as the third Major.

Entertainment and Dancing

The entertainment to be given by the young people of the Universalist Society at City Hall, Friday evening, March 19th, will be an enjoyable affair and a large attendance may be expected. It will consist in part of an illustrated poem entitled "A Romance of the Ganges" participated in by seven well known young ladies. Miss Edith Bradford will sing and Pullen's orchestra will play. The entertainment will be followed by dancing.

A BISHOP ON LYNCHING

Advises the Negroes to Arm and Shoot Mobs Who Attack Them

New York, March 17 A World special from Atlanta, Ga says Bishop Henry M Turner, of the African Methodist church, in the "Voice of Missions" writes "The fiendish lynching of John M Johnson and Archibald Joiner upon mere suspicion in Louisiana, while the African Methodist Episcopal Bishops were meeting in the city of New Orleans only a few miles from the scene of blood and death was damnable

Let every negro in this country who has a spark of manhood in him supply his house with one two or three guns or with a seven or sixteen shooter and I advise him to keep them loaded and ready for immediate use and when his domicile is invaded by bloody lynchers or any mob, day or night, Sabbath or week days turn loose your missiles of death and blow the fiendish invaders into a thousand giblets We have had it in our minds to say this for over seven years but on account of our Episcopal status we hesitated to express ourselves, thus fearing it might meet with the disapproval of the House of Bishops

But their approval or disapproval has done nothing to stay the fiendish murderers who stalk abroad and are exterminating my race So we have said it, and hereafter we shall preach it, speak it, talk it and write it Again we say, get guns negroes, get guns and may God give you good aim when you shoot "

Schooner Fumigated

Boston, March 17 The three masted schooner John B Doyle of Portland, (Captain Berry, Havana) arrived at quarantine this forenoon, where she is detained by the health authorities although there is no sickness aboard. The reason for this action is that Surgeon General Wyman is ordering the fumigation of all vessels from Havana, where, it is said, smallpox is very prevalent.

Under the supervision of the port physician the Doyle was thoroughly disinfected this noon, together with the clothing of the crew. It is probable that the vessel will be allowed to proceed to the city to-morrow morning. The schooner had 7,000 bags of sugar consigned to the American Sugar Refining Co She left Havana March 2 and made a remarkably good passage for this season of the year.

Repairing Asphalt Pavements.

The tearing up of asphalt pavements for the laying of gas, water and gas pipes and for sewer connections is one of the knottiest problems with which the public works departments have to deal Builders have a right to these connections which cannot be abridged and corporations obtain rights for street disturbance which the city [illegible] find it difficult to control. While it is usually a good compulsory [illegible] for such work and the parties are compelled to restore the pavement in kind [illegible] the break is made the [illegible] almost invariably settles in time [illegible] and so sinks with it leaving [illegible] hollows in the pavement [illegible] being a blot in several [illegible] to [illegible] the cost of repairs is exceedingly reasonably possible in the [illegible] this cost will discourage any but [illegible] necessary openings

Brooklyn has just framed a regulation requiring not only a proper refilling and [illegible] of the trench [illegible] the laying of eight inches of Portland cement concrete under the paving surface. It is expected that this concrete will bridge the opening and prevent surface settlement even when the filling beneath does sink. But the new regulation does not materially to the cost [illegible] of the repairs and to [illegible] in the hands of experienced and [illegible] rather than to divide [illegible] among many contractors [illegible] mentioned that New York city charges $4 per square yard for repairing an asphalt pavement [illegible] $16 and $8 for the first [illegible] of granite pavement and $4 for each additional yard. The city of [illegible] charges $3 for a [illegible] pavement, and [illegible] to $11 but recently [illegible]—Engineering News.

Remarkable Coincidence

A remarkable coincidence occurred recently in the courtroom [illegible] probably would not happen again in many a term of court The clerk was reading a list of names of the jurymen [illegible] name of William Henry Harrison Williams, Greenwood [illegible] To the astonishment of everybody [illegible] got up [illegible] their hats and coats and went forward. On being questioned they were found to fill every requirement. It was a knockout for the [illegible] The court excused them and ordered them to draw mileage and pay for one day.—Leadville (Pa.) Tribune.

A Good Illustrator

A Tennessee man accidentally shot a dog and in trying to explain to the owner how it occurred accidentally shot him In a further effort of illustration he accidentally shot the coroner and is now out on bail trying to find somebody to whom he may explain the latter occurrence.
